Our Jails and Penitentiaries.

Judge Brewster, in charging the jury of the Court of Quarter Sessions, in Philadelphia, called attention in the over-crowded condition of the jail as a reproach to humanity. His remarks in addition (are not apply to Philadelphia alone. We quote the following, which might have been spoken with equal propriety by one of our own judges:

We profess to be a civilized community, and to treat our criminals according to law. Unfortunately, the law is not always carried out. Many of the prisoners in the county prison are awaiting trial for months, and even years, and are subjected to the contamination of the vilest criminals. We quote the following, which might have been spoken with equal propriety by one of our own judges:

Special correspondence Pittsburgh Commercial.

HARRISBURG, April 7, 1868.

The House was in session yesterday afternoon and the Senate last night. No important bill was acted on in the former, and one or two in the latter branch.

A mercantile bill was introduced by Senator Engle, from Lancaster, incorporating "The Pennsylvania Express Company," which was passed to third reading during last night's session in the Senate. This bill is a very important one, giving to the company railroad, canal and insurance privileges, and authorizing it to contract for and carry freight and issue the same through the United States. The corporators named in the bill are George K. Anderson, of Venango county; J. D. Cameron, of the city of Harrisburg; Charles McCurdy, of Delaware, of the city of Philadelphia, and W. B. Ijams, of Delaware county. The capital stock consists of one hundred shares of one thousand dollars per share, with the privilege of increasing the same to a million of dollars.

The representatives of the Adams Express who have heretofore been able to prevent any bill that has been presented for the incorporation of a rival express company, from passing, have failed by the friends of this bill, and, notwithstanding their great influence, it received twenty-two votes more on the minority report than was given by the Senate on the final passage, and the Adams Express agents did not venture to even call the yeas and nays. It passed unanimously.

It was soon messaged over to the House as nearly all such bills do not hang long in the Senate after they reach it, and on the floor of the House stacked the table, some member asked that this bill should be upon the table. The effect of that motion is to prevent it from being considered that night. Upon the question being submitted to the House, a motion is agreed to the bill taken by unanimous consent, just as though it had been referred to the proper committee and been regularly reported from it. Speech after speech, which was originated by Mr. Adams, from Philadelphia, one single question prevents the bill from being held over to the action. So the matter was referred to Common Pleas upon Corporations. Mr. Adams, afterwards withdrew his opposition, and the bill will be on the private calendar on Tuesday. There may be some opposition to it by that time, however, as we are hearing many determinations of opposition to defeat it.

Senators Jackson and Lindsay, Democratic members of the committee on the contested election case, made a minority report to the Senate last night. It was extremely partisan in its character. They evidently felt the necessity of forcing a report to enable the Democracy to get their party at the election last fall. In the Twenty-first District, it is generally conceded that Mr. Wallace prepared the minority report.

The Governor signed several important bills yesterday, among which are the Registry law, the Penn National law and the Indemnity Railroad law. The latter is the most important bill passed this session than the one last named. It is general in its character, and applies to all corporations. It is a mystery to your correspondent why the provisions of this law receive more attention from the press of the State during its pending in the House. There is not one of the features in it but what I think is objectionable, and that is the cause in the act extending its provisions to cases already in the Courts, but not yet adjudicated. It is supposed that the Governor did not object to that feature. However there is not the same opposition in the minds of the people against Railroad Companies generally as there is against the Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania Railroad Company before, neither the people, the press nor the Governor are so likely to scrutinize legislation as closely where its provisions are general as they are when it is only aimed at one Company and that company the Pennsylvania Railroad. The bill is now a law, and I would advise those corporations who have charters to look into, and thus avoid litigation with Railroad Companies in case they receive powers of condemnation.

Commercial law goes domestic, as was argued. The State has no law

THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1868.

The Commercial is the largest daily paper in the State, and from forty-one fourth more reading than any other paper in Pittsburgh. It is the only Pittsburgh paper that uses the telegraph liberally, gives full market reports, and all the news of the day.

As proof of the ultimate growth in the market reports of the Commercial, we will state that they are regularly copied by the New York Economist, Shipping List, Iron Age, and other papers of the character in that and other cities, and that leading English commercial papers and circulars especially reprint them with credit. There is within the hundred miles, hardly an Iron Factory, Oil Refinery, or leading manufactory of any kind that is not a subscriber to the Commercial, principally, because its reports are the only full and reliable given of the Pittsburgh markets.

CROP AND FRUIT PROSPECT.

Our friends everywhere will confer a favor by writing us briefly concerning the grain and fruit prospect, and the farming and business prospect generally. We shall be obliged for any item of local interest that may be within their knowledge.

The name of Secretary STANTON having been suggested for the post of Secretary of the Treasury, in case impeachment succeeds, it is reported that he has signified that under no circumstances will he accept it. Mr. WADE's Cabinet—the chickens generally before they are hatched—begins to be the object of interest. Hon. ALEX CAMERON for the Postoffice is among the probabilities. Mr. STEVENSON, of Buffalo, and FRANCIS CLARK, of Rochester, New York, and Senator MORRILL are considerably talked about for the Treasury. Should WADE go in, his Cabinet would in some sort be GRANT's, and it is not unlikely that it would be made up in view of the chance of things in this respect.

It turns out, as we supposed it would, that the Democrats acted themselves from total defeat in Connecticut by swelling their vote in the cities. How they did it is not a difficult question to answer. If they had recalled an indefinite number of voters beyond what they dipped from New York, the supple in that city is known to be able to stand the draft. In the rural districts, where the ballot-box is kept comparatively pure, the Republican strength, as a general thing, not only kept up, but had a healthy growth. As a consequence, the Republican majority in the Legislature, which was only eleven last year, has been increased to nearly fifty, and a thorough Republican instead in the place of the fourteen-ball Democ. Gracey will carry the State high and dry.

WILL IMPEACHMENT CARRY.

If we were to accept the Democratic groans and their Washington letter writers, as good authority, we should have no hesitation in coming to the conclusion that the Managers had entirely failed to make out their case, and that impeachment was sure to fail. A more complete failure, supposes, was never witnessed, and the Republicans are overwhelmed with discomfiture. When the defence presents their side of the case, the impeachers will have nothing to stand on, says another. Only by the severest party drill, say they all, will at least a dozen Senators be kept up to the work and induced to consent to any other verdict than that of acquittal. In claiming a chance for the President, his friends concede that the Republican Senators from the North have not been animated by the spirit of partisanship, and are not likely to be in making up their final verdict. This is what has been claimed for them by their friends from the first; but inasmuch as from time and strict regard for the principle of justice and the facts, by no means contemplate the acquittal of the President as the only verdict possible. Were the Republican Senators in this matter the bonded partisans the Democrats are, the trial would be a mockery. The President was promised a fair trial, and he is having one, and solely because the Republican Senators, acting as impartial judges, accorded it to him. Of course it is an impossible to say in advance what will be the finding of this court, so far as the majority are concerned, to say other, except as can be inferred from the testimony. But the President's friends do not hesitate to promise the case; and it is to be observed that from the beginning no sort of doubt has been entertained what will be the verdict of the Democratic Senators. Seven Republicans voting with them, it has been steadily claimed, will save the President. Now we see they, in setting up a claim to these seven, consent in attributing to that number the motives that will actuate them. At one time they claim them because a case has not been made out; at another because certain Republicans not liking Mr. WADE prefer to see no change in the White House. Of course, human nature in a Senator is the same as in other men, but in the absence of proof that a single Republican member of the Senate will be influenced by love for this man or hate for that, the idea should be dismissed at once.

All the information that reaches us on the subject, leads us to believe that impeachment will carry, and that the Republicans will be nearly unanimous for such a verdict—not as a party measure, however, but because the law, justice and policy will require it. We are aware that the names of certain Republican Senators are finally circulated as likely to go for acquittal, but in regard to nearly every one of them we have reason to believe that this is done without warrant.

COLOR vs. INTELLIGENCE.

Michigan is voting by an overwhelming majority against the new constitution, has declared against negro suffrage. We might proceed to denounce the people of Michigan, heavily Republican as the majority, on a direct vote, nearly is there, for their factual in so doing; but that would be quarreling with manhood and its prejudices as we find them everywhere. The banks which have cast these anti-negro suffrage ballots are the same which cast the ballots that have held Michigan in such steady support of Congress and negro suffrage in the rebellious States. The people of that State do not choose to permit the negro to vote there, though they have affirmed and repeated the affirmation that negro suffrage in the rebellious States is not only right but necessary to loyal government in those States. And so, as long as men's prejudices remain, will be the verdict in nine cases out of ten. When men have conquered their prejudices they will perceive that color neither qualifies nor disqualifies a man concerning suffrage. And the sooner the question is changed, or that prejudice will not marry reason, and intelligent suffrage becomes the watchword, the sooner will a reasonable conclusion be reached. Neither the word white nor the word black has anything to do with the proper definition of an elector. His be the requisite intelligence and character? is the only question to be asked and answered; and it can be as easily answered as whether a man is white or black. Fitness attaches to the mind and character, but no more to the color of the skin than the color of the hair. If you decide that no negro shall vote, do you do so because of his skin, merely, or because a dark skin is evidence of the want of capacity? If the former, the test is absurd and will not stand a moment. If the latter, then many a so-called black man will be a good voter, and many a so-called white man will be counted out. The test of intelligence incorporated in the Michigan Constitution, we doubt not would have carried. The first real objection to such a test has not been raised, only to the practicability of applying it. But on examination that objection will vanish. This test of color and intelligence, and crime opens all the shades of ignorance and crime on the ballot box, floating into the offices, high and low, congenial characters. Michigan has done an inconsistent and unreasonable thing, just as will other communities under similar circumstances do, before the question was put in a form to cause all the prejudices of gain, caution, and fear to throw the determining of the verdict. Let the question embody the principle of color and intelligence, and Michigan and Kentucky and these other States which, like her, will reject negro suffrage, squarely put, will promptly accept it.

P. C. K.

IMPEACHMENT AT BAIL.

Judge CURTIS will open the case for the President to-day, using brief notes, not with a written and printed argument, as has been reported. Mr. Thad. Stevens has commenced the preparation of a speech, and General LOGAN also desires to have an opportunity to make a few remarks, while Messrs. Boutwell and Bingham are to close the case in opposition to Messrs. Stanbery and Evarts.

Mr. Sumner appears disposed not to let the Chief Justice off so easy; for he has prepared and published an elaborate argument showing that he has not the right to give the casting vote as he has twice done since the trial commenced. Mr. Sumner constitutes as follows:

"We are the Senate, he is the presiding officer. Grant that he is the Chief Justice of the United States, he is always the most conspicuous officer of state. So much he has in his favor, and by the dignity of his presence and the authority of his office. Nothing in this case, as we have seen, can exceed the power of the presiding officer of the Senate in the course of business; and for all the character with the agent of power. Nothing in this case can become the organ, but nothing can become its organ, but nothing can become its organ, but nothing can become its

The White and Black Population of the Southern States.

There are but two States in the South where the negro population outnumbers the white—the States of South Carolina and Mississippi. In the other eight reconstructing States the whites are so largely in the majority that if they are entitled to will be either because they refuse to register, or because more are disfranchised than Congress intended. The following table gives estimates of population, and covers the year 1867, based on the census of 1860, with proper allowance for natural increase and for the losses during the war:

| State. | Whites. | Negroes. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Alabama | 726,915 | 437,770 | 964,201 |
| Arkansas | 366,880 | 111,259 | 478,139 |
| Florida | 91,987 | 61,745 | 153,732 |
| Georgia | 591,550 | 465,698 | 1,057,248 |
| Louisiana | 357,456 | 364,210 | 721,666 |
| Mississippi | 436,696 | 437,404 | 874,100 |
| North Carolina | 629,942 | 288,548 | 918,490 |
| South Carolina | 291,300 | 412,320 | 703,620 |
| Texas | 601,039 | 253,475 | 854,514 |
| Virginia | 1,047,354 | 512,841 | 1,560,195 |
| Total | 5,345,119 | 3,525,250 | 8,870,369 |

If all were registered, the white majorities would be as follows: In Alabama, 26,278; Arkansas, 27,719; Florida, 4,288; Georgia, 32,500; Louisiana, 18,000; North Carolina, 81,500; Texas, 40,000; Virginia, 19,500. The black majorities would be in Mississippi, 3,270; South Carolina, 6,650. If, in the eight States where the whites are dominant, disfranchisement is limited by the condition of the Reconstruction bills, the white majorities cannot be entirely wiped out, except, possibly, in Florida.

Much political gossip was recently excited in London in connection of the attendance of Mr. and Mrs. Disraeli at a reception by Mrs. Gladstone. The new Premier was seen to engage in a long and animated conversation with his distinguished rival, and many absurd stories are related in consequence. It has never been unusual for the chiefs of opposite parties to partake of this, the slightest and least of hospitalities, without saying or implying nothing more than a certain politeness in society. Mr. Gladstone has constantly attended Lord Derby's receptions, and the leaders of the Conservative Opposition were frequently to be seen at Gastridge House. It has hitherto, however, been unusual for the Prime Minister to drop in at and mingle with the crowd of political friends and foes at the house of a leading Opposition. Neither Sir Robert Peel nor Lord Derby was ever known to do so.

The Pittsburgh Association for the Relief of the Poor gratefully acknowledges the receipt of clothing, across the street, from the Third United Presbyterian Church, Rev. Noble, pastor.

It is encouraging that the times are so improved as to allow of plans for the comfort of the unfortunate children of the State. The winter has been a severe one, and many of the infirmary clients have been unable to get employment, many growing into demands upon the public charity. Many of the poor creatures have been inmates of the asylums here for years, and others, many of them making over a hundred visits to their districts. With but a small sum of money in the treasury, the Superintendent has been obliged to refuse her, and a press of misery and suffering to be relieved, the Association, feeling itself specially in debt, was induced to undertake the work itself. Hence the Christmas dinner, April 9th. Four give them relief, if many call cases we will mention but one, that of a family whom the relief in the winter, the youngest one was born, and the mother, whose only remedy is to die after as the winter.

Some of the families will many others have come to the Association for relief, and have been refused by the the greater number have need to and will be relieved. The Association has no regular fund for this purpose, but relies entirely on voluntary contributions of those who are willing to help the poor. Many of the families in the city have a number of dresses belongs from entering out of the city, and if they would send them to the Association it would be a great assistance to the poor. ### The Union Depot and the Grain Elevator.

The approach to the Union Depot is one of the most disagreeable, inconvenient and dangerous that can be imagined. The approach is the access and approachableness, were it not for the surroundings. The certain diversity of channels becoming high above the level of the river, and the shifting of the river channel when any engineering is done from the west—the main approach—and to the bridge, the way to the depot, to be left hand, and the right hand, and the left hand, and the right hand, and the left hand, and the right hand, and the
